The New Book: Turkish as the Founding Language of “Indo-European”

The Concealed Root of European Languages

A narrow, dogmatic view towards linguistics and ancient history has led social science into a deadlock. Hopefully, this book, bringing a different perspective, will help us escape this deadlock (788 pages). It is the most comprehensive version of what I have written so far, with additions, corrections and combinations.

Let me describe the symbols on the cover of the book: At the bottom, one of the T-shaped monuments of Göbeklitepe. On it, Sumerian script with Turanian Turkic influence. The letter T symbolizes immortality, stability, and “Tanrı” (God). Turkish 'tur - dur': durability... Tan, toğ (dawn, day, sun rise) …T is an emblem of Turanic, Turkic peoples. “Turağut”s (Dravits), Thracians, Trojans, Etruscans... The Y symbol on the stone traces the path of the Y chromosome. Peoples spreading from the “tepe”s (s-teppes) of Central Asia to the world. One end of the fork extends to the Celts (Turanic Stonehenges), and the other end to Native Americans (totem) (Turkish “tut”, “tutar”: hold, keep, total…

Turkish as the Founding Language of "Indo-European"

The Concealed Root of European Languages

PREFACE

Turkish is the root of European languages called Indo-European languages. Because the roots of the people speaking these languages were Proto-Turks and Turanians. This is a fact stated by many important Western scientists and authors until the 20th century. These were almost forgotten after the Indo-European theory was fabricated and came to dominate linguistics and history. But some Western writers who still did not forget continued their publications in this direction. We took these studies to a much higher level. There is enough linguistic evidence to prove the statement in the first sentence of this paragraph. This information is strongly supported by genetic documents and cultural elements.

I started working on this subject in 2010. My first article about this issue was dated 2013-2014. Mainly on the website insanbu.com. I published my first book in 2017: "Eleştirel Bakışla Güneş-Dil Kuramı ve İlk Güneş Dil Sözlüğü". And later "Radloff Sözlüğünden Çıkan Bulgulara Göre BATI DİLLERİNİN KÖKÜNDEKİ GÜÇLÜ TÜRKÇE, 2020".

Later, with the suggestion of my friend Norm Kisamov, an independent Turcologist living in America, I started writing these in English internationally: On the site called academia.edu. My first article here was: Denying Turkish at the Root of European Languages Puts History and Linguistics in a Deadlock (Are Thousands of Turkish Root Words in Western Languages Just a "Similarity" or a Coincidence?) January 2022 …

The discussion I had about this article with the esteemed scientist ethnic geneticist Anatole Klyosov comprises the first chapter of this book.

This book is an abbreviated compilation of more than 30 articles I have published on academia.edu. They are listed in chronological order from oldest to newest. However, the largest section, a dictionary I published in the middle of the period, is at the back part of the book.

Throughout this process, I progressed by constantly reading, discussing and learning. In this regard, my first articles in this book may contain some omissions and even partial misinterpretations. The articles at the end of the book are the most valid. Additionally, in my first article on this subject, I gave 60 examples of so-called Indo-European word roots compatible with Turkish. Then this number exceeded 180. I can currently show that around 300 so-called IE roots derive from Turkish. As for the “Dictionary” section. It was constantly revised and new words and roots were added. This is its the last version in the book. It contains more than 15 thousand Western words. It is a work in progress.

Looking at language and history from this perspective of reality will radically change many paradigms in the social field. In addition, the Turkish language is a very different language in terms of its roots, syntax and grammar. Studying and knowing it is undoubtedly very important to understand the formation and development of language in humans.

Thanks…

This study is actually the work of more than 300 authors who have worked hard on the subject. I can't write here all names, but some of them are below. Most of them are mentioned in “references” section.

Authors from Türkiye: primarily Adnan Atabek, Konstanty Borzecki (Mustafa Celalettin Pasha), Bedros Efendi Keresteciyan, İsmail Hami Danişmend, Osman Nedim Tuna, Vecihe Hatiboğlu, Adile Ayda, Kazım Mirşan, Ünal Mutlu, Haluk Tarcan, Haluk Berkmen, Polat Kaya, Osman Karatay, Nüvit Alagöz, Abdullah Gürgün, Çağıl Çayır, Osman Sertkaya, Murat Karamüftüoğlu, Osman Çataloluk, Mehmet Bayrakdar, Mehmet Ciğerli, Ekrem Hayri Peker, İlknur Arslanoğlu and others … Yusuf Has Hacip, Kaşgarlı Mahmut and of course M.K. Atatürk.

Foreign writers, primarily Norm Kisamov, Illich Svitych, Sergei Starostin, Wilhelm Radloff, Allan Bomhard, Mel Copeland, Georgeos Diaz-Montexano, Anatole Klyosov, Mario Alinei, Jacques Coulardeau, Yuri Drozdov, Olcas Suleymanov, Irek Bikkinin, Çingiz Garaşarlı, Murat Adji, Strahlenberg, Vilhelm Thomsen, Martti Rasanen, Fritz Hommel, Snurre Sturlesson, Sven Lagerbring … and many others.

Thanks to the authors: Jadranka Ahlgren, Bill Lipton, Anton Perdih, Xavier Rouard, Vladimir Pajevic, George Telezhko, Juan Luis Lopez, Richard W Youatt, Nedim Pala, Peter D . DunphyHetherington, Sibel Küçükoğlu, Guðrún K Magnúsdóttir and others … for their comments, contributions and support in the discussions on the subject.

I must also give special thanks to the media organization ODA-TV, which made a great contribution to the reading of these articles both inside and outside Turkey. Especially to its founder and director, Soner Yalçın, who has given great support to my work from the very beginning.

Also to Vedat Köle… And also many friends who are not authors but have contributed... Thanks to all of them.
